

ABSTRACT

Pasta products having novel shape and methods for preparing the same. In particular, networks of pasta can be prepared (e.g. by extrusion), which may be used for filled pasta. The technique allows for macropores to be formed, which can improve rehydration, heating up, and thawing of pasta particles.